

COME FLY WITH ME - '60s DÉCOR SWINGS BACK IN FASHION

Mad Men. Pan AM. Even The Playboy Club. Stories of the 1960s have been delighting television viewers, but is it the clash of changing mores or the chic styles and décor that captivate? Lighting plays its role then and now. Choose a reproduction from one of the era's iconic design masters or a fresh interpretation to suit today's lifestyles.

The sky's the limit with Holtkötter International's Galileo with its dimmable base and three-way switch in the shade. Imparting a definite '60s appeal, they measure 56³/₄, 31¹/₂, and 23⁵/₈ inches high. They are lamped in the base with two 120-volt, 40-watt G9 Halopins by OSRAM, which are included with the purchase. One three-way Edison bulb fits the upper socket. The glass base and shades are made in Germany.

Evoking the fun nature of the era, the Palla pendant (Model #523-SA) combines natural white capiz shell (a popular material of the time) with light-capturing, hand-cut crystals for a 21st century vibe. The wrought iron frame is further lightened with an Antique Silver finish. The fixture measures 8½" high x 13¾" diameter. It comes with a chain length of up to 120 inches. Swagging it is so '60s!

The Palla collection is designed by Dorian Webb, whose jewelry has adorned some of the world's most famous women, including First Lady Michelle Obama, Oprah Winfrey, and Jennifer Aniston.

As part of Rejuvenation's Mid-Century line, the Hourglass Collection's Galaxy 10-light chandelier (Model #A6476) is an iconic look for the era based on the 1959 Stockholm series manufactured by EJS Lighting. This style of fixture enjoyed wide use in hotels and office buildings. Like the originals, this piece is handcrafted in all aluminum with perforations in the shades to produce a starlight effect when lit. Measuring 43" high x 28" diameter, it comes with a three-way switch for up, down, or up-and-down illumination. It is available with two to five lights.

Artek is bringing back original designs from the late '50s. The U336 pendant was created by Jorn Utzon, who worked in Finnish designer Alvar Aalto's studio. The neutral white finish and shell-like structure echo Utzon's more famous work – the Sydney Opera House. U336 was created for the Villa Mairea in Finland but was never put into general production, until now. It's available in Brass, Chrome, and White.

An icon of the '60s, George Kovacs brought modern lighting to many through his store in Manhattan and later his studio. Encouraging a cadre of leading designers such as Robert Sonneman, his creations and spirit of contemporary style live on through the Minka Group's George Kovacs® division. Grid™ captures the celebration of modern materials and treatments, with its perforated steel and white inner diffuser. The Brushed Nickel enhances the material, which is used on the table lamp, plus companion floor version as well as a sconce and pendant.
